Introducing AACN’s Nursing Voices, Nursing Votes
AACN is excited to unveil Nursing Voices, Nursing Votes, a new nonpartisan initiative designed to encourage, educate, and engage nursing deans, faculty, and students as they amplify their voices during election season.

Nursing Voices, Nursing Votes features social media outreach to inform AACN members on upcoming primary dates, registration deadlines, and a countdown to the 2018 Midterm Elections. Additionally, the initiative offers members the opportunity to join the conversation #NursingVoicesNursingVotes, enter and track voter registration statistics among member schools on the AACN website, and access additional state-by-state voting resources.

Follow @AACNPolicy and @AACNursing on Twitter for voting reminders and get involved by tweeting with #NursingVoicesNursingVotes. Sign up today on the Nursing Voices, Nursing Votes webpage and join your colleagues in this national effort to get out the vote.

AACN Joins Amicus Brief to Support Diversity

The filed brief argues that student diversity is essential to the educational objectives of colleges and universities, and that each institution should be able to exercise its academic judgment to determine within broad limits the diversity that will advance its own particular mission. AACN also strongly advocates for holistic admissions in its schools, which helps higher education institutions consider a broad range of factors that reflect an applicant’s academic potential, in an effort to advance diversity and inclusivity in academic nursing.
