2020 Academic Nursing Leadership Conference

A Month-Long Virtual Experience beginning October 1

Live Online Event October 18-20

www.aacnnursing.org/ANLC
Deans and Associate/Assistant Deans of AACN Member Schools of Nursing are invited to join peers during the month of October to hear from leading experts, trendsetters, and academic and legislative speakers on driving innovation and excellence in nursing. This virtual experience provides participants access to forward-thinking exchanges, including interactive plenary and concurrent sessions, panel discussions, and engaging networking and brainstorming opportunities with peers.

The Academic Nursing Leadership Conference (ANLC) is the premier event for academic nursing leaders, who will reconnect and re-energize with colleagues to impact nursing education and the future of nursing.

This virtual experience begins October 1, with a live online event October 18-20, and post-conference content through October 30.

REGISTER at www.aacnnursing.org/ANLC and benefit from AACN’s New RISK-FREE Registration Policy.

Looking Ahead – Election 2020 and Beyond
Honorable Congressman Alan Wheat
D-MO
Honorable Congressman John Shadegg
R-AZ
Join our bipartisan experts as they pull from their years of experience on and off Capitol Hill and share election outlooks as we continue to address current and future healthcare challenges.

The Imperative of Civility and Community in Uncertain Times
Dr. Cynthia Clark
Professor Emeritus, School of Nursing, Boise State University
The COVID-19 pandemic has changed our lives in a variety of unprecedented and unpredictable ways. This engaging and thought-provoking session provides a deepened and empirical understanding of incivility and its impact, as well as a variety of evidence-based strategies to foster civility and healthy academic work environments.

The Future of Health Care: Finding Common Ground in Divisive Times
Dr. Darrell Kirch
President Emeritus, Association of American Medical Colleges, Adjunct Professor of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, School of Medicine, Stanford University
Many would argue that we live in a time of unprecedented divisions on multiple fronts- generational, regional, partisan, and professional. Dr. Kirch draws on his experiences in government, academia, and associations to discuss the drivers of these divisions and, most importantly, describe how healthcare can and should become the place in which we find national (and even global) “common ground.”

Leadership and Diversity During a Pandemic Disruption
Dr. Angela Amar
Dean, School of Nursing, University of Nevada, Las Vegas
Dr. Edilma Yearwood
Associate Professor, School of Nursing & Health Studies, Georgetown University
Sean Olson
CEO and Co-founder, Renogize Professional Coaching
This discussion looks at different approaches taken to lead through the challenges of 2020. Together we will learn how to prepare leadership for any disruption and intentionally lead your school to success.

Challenging Assumptions: Innovating Through Chaos
Dr. Dan Weberg
Head of Clinical Innovations, Trusted Health
Healthcare education and systems are experiencing massive disruptions. High-performing organizations use rigorous innovation to adapt to the changing market. This presentation discusses how leaders can harness the energy of chaos to mobilize teams and create the future nursing education.

Don’t miss the opportunity to attend one of the premier events for academic nursing leaders!
Meaningful Recognition of Faculty: Leveraging the Power in the Academic Setting
Dr. Patricia Yoder-Wise
Professor, Dean Emerita, School of Nursing, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center

AI – Key to Accelerated Learning and Innovation in Academic Nursing
Dr. Roy L. Simpson
Assistant Dean, Technology Management, Clinical Professor, Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing, Emory University
